The murder was committed about twelve years ago.

The victim was Amos J. Stillwell-also a former resident of Maysville—a rich man, and his alleged murderers are his wife and Dr. Hearne, who married the widow less than a year after Stillwell was found murdered in his bed. Suspicion never pointed to them until within the last few months. A newspaper published the first intimation that the husband and wife were under suspicion, and was sued for libel by the couple. The paper then went to work and got evidence enough to warrant the belief that the Doctor and his wife will be indicted for the murde

As a matter of fact, all this row about Blackburn is a mere electioneering dodge to make strength next year for the Car "sie boom. To down Blackburn will help Carl'se to get the Kentucky delegation in 1836. There is very little love of sound money, but there is a great deal of 'the love of money,' which the Good Book tells us it 'the root of all evil,' and of pie and patronage and the like that The C-J greatly needs in its business. Hardin is not a Carl'sie man by a large majority and his defeat would not burt the Carlisle boom, because it would be charged to Jo., wile you know has an account with The C-J that the 'organ on the corner,' would like to have settled. Just watch how the wind blows and you will see a Carlisle flag floating from every anti-Blackburn camp. But for the present, as Blackburn and the cuckoos cannot sleep in the same bed, let's put them to sleep in the same little bed. And what about Wat Hardin? No-body knows! He does not know whether he is or he iso't. Just now he seems to be making a diligent canvass of the state to asce tain which sidepromises to afford the safest place to fall on. Two Distinguished Persons Who Have Not Yet Shown Up.

Some newspaper, a few days after the death of Pobert Dale Owen the Spiritualis, said that if ever there was a nun who was under bonde, as it were, to revisit bis world, that man was Robert Dale Owen. If he did not come, then it must go as proof that there was no coming back for anyone, and, consequently, no such things as ghosts.

Better proof even than this, is that Gould the railroad magnate and financier never put in an appearance when all that money which he bad made by peddling small waves turough Virginia, was thrown to the four winds, his daughter fooling $15.03.030 of it away in one day on a wortuless Frenchman.
